Stormwater Management

How Can I Be a Good Stormwater Neighbor?

AUTHOR: HEATHER MCKEAN

Former Extension Educator, Water Quality, Pennsylvania State University

Have you ever discussed stormwater with your neighbor or wondered how to be a better stormwater neighbor? Neighbor disputes over stormwater are very common. Water does not follow property boundaries and there are often instances where water flows from one property onto another and causes damage. It is important to realize that activities on your own property can adversely affect your neighbor's property.

The first thing to do as a responsible neighbor is to familiarize yourself with how stormwater flows on your own property. Ask yourself how does water enter and exit my property? Are there areas of concentrated flow currently causing damage to your property or adjacent neighboring property? If so, flows can be re-directed to vegetated areas for infiltration. You can also install a rain barrel, cistern, rain garden, or dry well as needed to control roof run-off.

When installing best management practices (or BMP's), do not direct stormwater flows onto a neighboring property and do not block stormwater from leaving your neighbor's property. Stabilize disturbed areas and maintain lawns, driveways, and gardens to prevent erosion and sedimentation on your own and on other peoples' properties. Changes from building and land development activities can alter natural flows of surface and stormwater. It is important to recognize that grading and re-grading can change how water moves across the land. It is essential to leave natural drainage paths undisturbed when possible and never intentionally concentrate stormwater flows.

If you live near a stream, pond, or stormwater drain you can plant a riparian buffer or establish a "grow zone" along the waterbody to allow pollutants to be filtered before reaching the water. This will help prevent erosion on your property. Also, do not compost yard waste such as leaves, grass clippings, or mulch into or near a stream or stormwater drain. Clean up trash, litter, and other debris that may clog a drain or small stream that could potentially cause flooding or pollution from water run-off.

If you find yourself in a dispute with a neighboring property owner over stormwater issues remember: open communication and cooperation can prevent stormwater issues and help resolve existing stormwater problems. If you have questions about local stormwater regulations, contact your municipality. It is important to take steps to protect natural water courses, infiltration areas, and drainage paths. Be mindful of how your actions can affect adjacent landowners and take steps to prevent damage not only on your own property but also on your neighbor's property.

If you have additional questions about stormwater, or you are just interested in learning more, you can find a full series of videos and articles in the Penn State Extension Stormwater Basics series.

2021 Projects

In November 2019, the town applied for an estimated 1-mile Vinland Street project that is in desperate need of road repairs that will improve the economic value in that area for commuters to businesses and between schools. The Town of Oshkosh was awarded the State funds to accomplish this road project.

Plans were made to start the project in 2020 which was altered and delayed because of Wisconsin Public Service utility and fiberoptic upgrades along the road that pushed back the road work to 2021.

Martenson & Eisle will be overseeing the project with bid awarded to Northeast Asphalt to begin the road work in late spring or early summer.

Also on the docket is resolving a long-time utility issue for a small community near the Winnebago Mental Health Institute with replacing the infrastructure in 2021. The Town of Oshkosh was awarded CDBG funding to cover the cost. The Town is working with General Engineering and Dempsey Law Firm in establishing easements, design plans, bidding processes, which will create a new sanitary district for this low to moderate income area.
